ITL Announcement

ITL launches first animal healthcare production

TEGO™ – Animal Blood Collection Device

The board of ITL is pleased to announce the launch of TEGO™ – a new animal blood collection kit for livestock. The TEGO™ kit, initially suitable for use with swine and cattle will be launched this month at the American Association of Veterinary Laboratory Diagnosticians (AAVLD) Annual Meeting to be held in San Diego, CA.

The TEGO™ kit is a breakthrough innovation for the collection of livestock blood samples. It introduces an unprecedented level of safety into the process of drawing blood for genetic and designated disease testing. The cost effective TEGO™ kit also simplifies the blood collection process without compromising sample integrity

ITL is a global medical device company that advances best practices through the design of its biological safety sampling devices. The TEGO™ animal blood collection kit combines this experience with expertise in livestock sampling systems to better meet the needs of veterinarians, animal handlers, producers and laboratories around the world.

The TEGO™ animal blood collection kit was designed and developed within ITL's Innovative Product Division and is in line with ITL's market diversification strategy. The animal healthcare market is a dynamic and rapidly growing global market which offers considerable future growth opportunities for ITL.
